Workshop on Communicating by Design: Critical Skills for Navigating Life

Resource Person Bio:

Amit Kumar has more than 30 years of diverse cumulative experience as trainer and coach, L&OD consultant, instructional design specialist, manager, and journalist in India, USA, Nepal and Mauritius. His experience spans several organisations including The World Bank, Ashoka University, The Times of India, AIIMS, Jindal Stainless, NIIT, Korn-Ferry, Deloitte. He has an MA in English Literature and an MSc in Computer Science.

Amit has been designing and conducting group workshops and individual coaching sessions for college students, corporate executives, social-sector professionals and government officers on the following themes: communication, emotion, cognition, management.

Workshop Concept Note:

Communication is a critical competency we need to navigate the highly competitive world we live in today. This workshop, designed for Gauhati University, introduces the participants to the fundamentals of communication.

At the end of this introductory two-hour module, students will be able to:

- Define the criticality of communication
- Enumerate the cost of poor communication
- List the three dimensions of communication
- Use appropriate body language and voice

The workshop is designed to be simple, engaging and effective. The session is highly immersive and experiential.
